An Ounce of Alabastine Prevention

The graveyards are full of people who were "never sick in their lives" until the fatal illness came: who didn't believe the machinery of their bodies needed any attention other than Nature's. They forgot that to rely on Nature one must live up to Nature's laws== and we don't live that way. That's why Nature needs assistance. That's why a TONIC is much more important than a physic. "NIPUR" BABYLONIAN

In ancient geography the city of "Nipur" is situated midway between Babylon and Erech. Ruins at "Nipur" were excavated and valuable specimens of ancient pottery found. They are on exhibition in the Imperial Museum at Constantinople, and a few specimens are in the United States. Reproductions of ancient "Nipur" Pottery have been made which are so accurate in detail that even Assyriologists might be deceived. The shapes are graceful and perfect. The effect of long burial—the mineral action on the surface resulting therefrom—is faithfully depleted. A charming iridescence glying impressions of copper and verdigris, ing impressions of copper and verdigris, tinges of yellow, green and red, is produced. We have a number of specimens of "Nipur" Babylonian Pottery on sale. Chas. R. Edmonston.
